

Running Hot and Cold >

Meet Max. Quiet, cute, and glad to be of service, Max is a fan in the summer, a heater in the winter, and a good guy to keep around the house (or office) all year long. (Max Fan Heater, originally $109, now $93 with code OPRAH; gnr8.biz)

> The Tea Party

Encased in adorable "tea caddies," these fragrant, handcrafted blends of full-leaf organic teas contain no synthetics or preservatives. (Starting at $30 each; now starting at $24 each with code OPRAH; bellocq.com)

< Scones Sold Separately

Time to stop gulping caffeine from to-go cups and sip instead from delicate bone china. Playful and pretty, these teacups come in sets of two—so you can invite a frazzled friend to join you. (Jasper Conran at Wedgwood Kilim teacup and saucer, $125 for two; wedgwood.com)

> Pet Project

Your job: Supply a photo of your pooch and select a color. Charles Fradin's job: Create a suede-bottomed canvas tote you'll keep forever. (Originally $490, now $392 with code OPRAH; charlesfradin.home.com)

> Jam Session >

Handmade on a farm in western New York, these preserves and condiments elevate every course of your feast, from the cheese and crackers (spiced rhubarb spread) to the dessert (sour cherry sauce). (Holiday Table Collection, $85 for set of six; hurdorcharads.com)

> Helping Hand >

These oven mitts are very Jane Jetson meets Julia Child. Best feature? The removable, machine-washable cotton lining—or the incredible heat resistance. (Mastrad OrkaPlus silicone mitt, originally $15, now $12 with code OPRAH; distinctive-decor.com)
